ABSTRACT

Tabular summaries of the numerical responses of 21,350 individuals to the First Followup Questionnaire of the National Longitudinal Study of the High School Class of 1972 are contained in this report. These items deal primarily with survey participants' educational experiences and occupational attainments in both October 1972 and October 1973; their continuing or revised plans for education, training, and jobs; and measures of their aspirations, attitudes and opinions. Statistical summaries of the responses were weighted to provide total population values. These weighted values were tabulated for different subgroups classified by sex, race, socioeconomic status, ability, type of high school program and region; and some two-way cross-tabulations of sex and race with each of the other variables. Specifications of these classification variables and the survey form are appended. (Author/MV)

FOREWORD

The National Longitudinal Study of the High School Class of 1972, a survey initiated by and conducted (under contract) for the National Center for Education Statistics, began in spring 1972 with over 1,000 in-school group administrations of survey forms to a sample of approximately 18,000 seniors. The first followup survey in October 1973 included almost 5,000 additional students from sample schools that were unable to participate in the base-year survey.

This report contains tabular summaries of the numerical responses of 21,350 individuals to the items of the First Follow-up Questionnaire. These items deal primarily with survey participants' educational experiences and occupational attainments, in both October 1972 and October 1973, together with their continuing or revised plans for education, training, and jobs as well as measures of their aspirations, attitudes, and opinions.

Continuing followup data will be requested from these individuals at planned intervals projected to cover 6 to 8 years. These repeated observations will permit examination of the relationships between schooling, work, and other experiences and subsequent career choices as well as educational and labor force participation of each of the selected individuals. Such information and the resultant analyses are important to those engaged in formulating legislative proposals and educational policy.

INTRODUCTION[1]

Background and Purpose

A 1968 survey conducted by the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) indicated that educational policymakers and researchers needed statistical data that would permit comparisons of student educational experiences with later outcomes. The following year, planning was initiated for a survey of high school graduates, involving selection of a representative sample of high school seniors to be traced through postsecondary experiences (including education and training), then followed until all had had the opportunity to enter the job market.

In April 1970, leading educational researchers and administrators met with Federal officials in Washington, D.C., to advise NCES on survey plans. The resulting National Longitudinal Study of the High School Class of 1972 (NLS) reflected their guidance and the interests of a number of U.S. Office of Education (USOE) bureaus (including Planning, Budgeting, and Evaluation, Postsecondary Education, Occupational and Adult Education, and Programs for the Handicapped) as well as of the National Center for Education Statistics. Several advisory committees (for example, one of research experts and representatives of various educational organizations, another of officials of State education agencies) helped plan and implement the survey. An internal USOE users' committee represented the data needs of the various offices and bureaus of the Education Division, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW).

Survey data-collection instruments and procedures were designed during the 1970-71 school year and tested on a small sample of seniors in spring 1971. One year later, the full-scale NLS study was initiated, with over 1,000 public and nonpublic schools and almost 18,000 seniors participating in the base-year survey. In fall 1973 and again in fall 1974, these individuals were again contacted, together with persons from sampled schools that did not participate in the base-year survey. The followup information thus gathered dealt with activities of the respondents since leaving high school and with their current plans for education, training, and jobs. Additional information will be sought from these young adults in fall 1976.

The longitudinal approach, which delineates a pattern of maturation and differentiation over a period of time, is essential for determining the effects of educational and training programs, policies, and practices. Such a design permits identification of temporal sequences of changes in variables—an important step in detecting and explaining their underlying relationships. Examination of the educational and occupational experiences of individuals and of the development of their aspirations, attitudes, and activities provides the broad predictive and diagnostic information needed for meaningful educational planning. The full value of studying high school seniors longitudinally will be realized only when data on the same individuals are analyzed for two or more points in time.

The NLS study will (1) supply the educational community with facts on the flow of young adults through the postsecondary educational-occupational system, (2) facilitate identification of major branching or decision points that affect educational and life patterns in the immediate postsecondary period, and (3) permit the tracing of individuals as they move from activity to activity and provide the means for determining the relative importance of the factors associated with these movements. Such results should improve the educational system by making it more responsive to students and their needs.

Sample Design

The sample design may be described as a deeply stratified 2-stage probability sample of all schools (public and private) in the 50 States and the District of Columbia which contained 12th-graders during the

[1] The first two sections, Background and Purpose, and Sample Design, are adapted from William B. Fetters, Student Questionnaire and Test Results by Sex, High School Program, Ethnic Category, and Father's Education (Washington, D.C.: U.S. Government Printing Office, 1975).

1971-72 school year. The first-stage school sampling frame, constructed from computerized school files maintained by the Office of Education and the National Catholic Education Association, was divided into 600 final strata based upon the following variables:

- Type of control (public or nonpublic)
- Geographic region (Northeast, North Central, South, and West)
- Grade-12 enrollment (less than 300, 300 to 599, and 600 or more)
- Proximity to institutions of higher learning (3 categories)
- Percent minority group enrollment (8 categories, public schools only)
- Income level of the community (11 categories, public schools; 8 categories, Catholic schools)
- Degree of urbanization (10 categories)

The number of classes defined by a cross-tabulation of the above stratification variables is far greater than the number of classes that could in fact be utilized. Consequently, it was necessary to consolidate or ignore, in some instances, some of the resulting classes. The final strata reflected not only priority considerations among the stratification variables but also judgment in consolidating the various classes to produce the desired number of strata.

Schools in the smallest grade-12 enrollment strata (fewer than 300 seniors) were selected (without replacement) with probabilities proportional to their estimated number of senior students. Schools in the remaining two enrollment strata were selected with equal probabilities (again without replacement). The number of disadvantaged students was increased by sampling schools in low-income areas and schools with high proportions of minority-group enrollments at twice the rate used for the remaining schools. Area income was based upon either an adjusted 1960 census median income of the county containing the school or the average adjusted gross income determined from the 1966 tax returns with the same 5-digit ZIP code as that for the school. Minority-group enrollments for individual schools were determined from Office for Civil Rights records or 1970 census data by counties.

Within the framework just outlined, four schools were initially selected for each final stratum and then two of the four were randomly designated as the primary selections. The other two schools were retained as backup or substitutes to be used in the sample only if one or both of the primary schools failed to cooperate. In the second stage, a simple random sample of 18 students per school was drawn, then 5 additional students were selected as replacements for possible nonparticipants among this sample. All of the students within a school were sampled with equal probabilities and without replacement.

The study excluded schools for physically or mentally handicapped students, schools for legally confined students, and schools (such as area vocational schools) where students were also enrolled in other institutions included in the sampling frame. Certain categories of students, such as early graduates and adult education students, were also excluded.

School Representation

Of the 1,200 primary sample schools, 949 participated in the base-year survey, 21 had no senior students enrolled, and 230 either refused to participate or could not because the request had arrived too late in the school year. Ninety-five schools from the backup sample also participated, as did 26 other "extra" schools. The latter were termed "extra" if, in the end, both primary sample schools from the stratum participated. However, they were excluded from the base-year data file and the first followup survey prior to resurveying the nonresponding primary sample schools.

The large primary sample school nonresponse in the base-year survey prompted further NCES attempts in summer 1973 to secure school participation as well as to replace the 21 schools that had no seniors. This "resurvey" activity, initiated before the first followup survey, entailed securing school cooperation, choosing random samples of up to 18 former 1972 seniors per school, and securing the last-known address of those selected. Samples and addresses were obtained in 204 of the 230 primary sample schools, as well as from 36 backup sample schools.

A sample of 200 school districts was canvassed during the base-year to identify public schools not in the original sampling frame. Forty-five such schools were identified, 23 were randomly selected as an "augmentation" sample, and 16 participated in the first followup survey.

In summary, data were collected from students in 1,044 schools participating in the base-year survey and 1,300 schools in the first followup survey. The total number of participating schools, by survey, is distributed as follows:

Source of school inclusion	Base-year survey (1972)	Resurvey effort (1973)	First followup survey (1973)
Primary sample	949	204	1,153
Backup sample	95	36	131
Augmentation sample	—	16	16
	1,044	256	1,300

Instrumentation

There were two versions of the fall 1973 instrument. Form A of the First Follow-up Questionnaire was sent to those defined as participants in the base-year survey because of having available one or more of the three data-collection instruments to be completed at that time. Form B went to individuals from "resurvey" and "augmentation" schools, because their participation began with the first followup.

Form B contained an additional 14 questions (86 to 99), so as to obtain retrospective data pertaining primarily to participants' senior year of high school. It was mailed also to a random sample of 500 base-year respondents to determine the extent to which the responses to questions 86 to 99 would agree with the equivalent senior-year responses for these individuals. Such procedure permits assessment of the validity of retrospective responses collected at first followup for the "resurvey" and "augmentation" school individuals. (The First Follow-up Questionnaire (Form B) is included as appendix A.)

First Followup Data Collection

Data collection in the first followup required an extensive tracing operation to update name and address files. The first followup survey embraced 18,672 base-year participants from 1,044 schools, with addition of 256 resurvey schools with 4,450 individuals, to give a first followup survey sample of 1,300 schools and 23,122 individuals. For operational reasons (e.g., duplicate names, unknown addresses, deceased), 102 individuals were deleted from the mailout list. On October 23-24, 1973, questionnaires were mailed to the last-known addresses of the resulting sample of 23,020. Active mail return efforts continued through December 1973 and, by early February 1974, 14,019 persons had responded. Personal interviews of 7,331 additional individuals increased the overall response to 21,350.

Sample Weights and Nonresponse Adjustments

Survey data were based on a sample rather than on a complete census of schools and students. However, estimates of characteristics from the sample can be weighted to produce population estimates and to assess the sampling reliability. Basic weights for preparing estimates from sample data are first calculated as the inverse of sample inclusion probabilities, then adjusted for base-year school and student nonresponse. An unadjusted weight for each of the selected students was calculated as a reciprocal of the school sample inclusion probability times the ratio of the number of seniors in a school divided by the number of sampled students in the school. The sum of the unadjusted student weights is then an estimate of the total number of 1972 high school seniors in the population.

Where either or both of the two primary sample schools assigned to a final stratum declined to participate in the base-year survey, there was a plan for the selection and use of backup schools as described earlier. If the combined solicitation of primary and backup schools failed to produce two schools per stratum, the weights of participating schools were increased to account for the missing schools. The addition of resurvey and augmentation schools to the first followup survey resulted in additional refinements to the weight adjustments.

A weighting-class procedure to adjust student weights for questionnaire nonresponse involved partitioning the 23,451 sample members (of whom 16,683 completed a base-year Student Questionnaire, 21,350 completed a First Follow-up Questionnaire, and 919 completed neither) into weighting classes. Grouping of respondents by survey classification variables of race, sex, high school curriculum, high school grades, and parents' education was an attempt to impute to nonrespondents the responses of those having similar characteristics. Thus, this adjustment reflects any differential response rates for students in each of the weighting classes.

The adjusted student weight for each respondent, when applied to respondent scores on an item, allows computation of national population estimates of the distribution of scores on that item. The weighted questionnaire responses reflect the difference in contribution that each sample member makes to the population estimate of that measure. Weighted percentage frequency distributions are derived by summing the weights associated with individuals in a given response category, then dividing by the total of the weights across all categories.

DESCRIPTION AND USE OF TABLES

General Statement

All the frequency counts of the valid response codes to items in the First Follow-Up Questionnaire were tabulated. In addition, there were items (e.g., job classifications) that were assigned numerical response codes. Each table shows only the weighted percentage distribution of valid responses to items in the questionnaire.[2] Along with a weighted percentage distribution of responses for the population as a whole, there are weighted percentages presented for the following subpopulations: sex, race, academic ability, socioeconomic status (SES), high school program, region, sex by race, and cross-classifications of sex and race each by academic ability, SES, high school program, and region.

Responses of individuals who cannot be classified as to sex, race, ability, SES, or high school program are reported under a "No Information" heading. Item respondents who cannot be located in any category of a given cross-classification (e.g., sex by SES) are noted as "Unclassifiable." A third heading, "Residual," indicates a respondent who cannot be classified as a member of a subpopulation or whose race is not black, white, or Latin American.

The actual number of respondents providing the base for the percentage is given for each row of the table along with the weighted N or population estimate. Variations from item to item in the sum of the N's may occur because of item nonresponse, as well as failure to correctly follow the skipping patterns of the questionnaire, for the questionnaire was constructed so that all questions were not to be answered by all respondents. When respondents skipped those items or sections about a particular area of inquiry not applicable to them (e.g., questions about military service when the respondent has a full-time civilian job), the number of item responses reported in the table was reduced.

Some tables present data on the same question drawn from two different item numbers. To avoid repetition, the respondents who were attending the same school and/or were working at the same job in both October 1972 and October 1973 were skipped around the repetitive items for 1972. In constructing tables 129-132, 145-146, and 240 to 246, the responses to the 1973 items were added, under the following conditions, to the corresponding 1972 items as outlined below:

Table number	Item to be pooled	Pooled from	Conditions
129	Q.32b (kind of school)	Q.26b	No response to Q.32b but response of 1 to Q.30
130	Q.32c (public or private)	Q.26c	No response to Q.32c but response of 1 to Q.30
131-132	Q.33a (date enrolled)	Q.27a	No response to Q.33a but response of 1 to Q.30

[2] A set of standard "error codes" was defined and applied uniformly across the data file to indicate certain common classes of erroneous or missing data. These codes are described in appendix B. Data so coded have been excluded from the reported percentages of the basic tables. Appendix C contains the absolute frequency distributions of all the First Follow-Up Questionnaire responses, including the error codes.

Table number	Item to be pooled	Pooled from	Conditions
145	Q.36b (field of study)	Q.28b	No response to Q.36b but response of 1 to Q.34
146	Q.36c (duration of program)	Q.28c	No response to Q.36c but response of 1 to Q.34
240-246	Q.55 (job held in Oct. 1972)	Q.49	No response to Q.55 but response of 1 to 54a

Tables 88, 93, 98, and 133, which present data relative to Questions 25, 27b, 29a, and 33b, respectively, are also constructed from combinations of item responses according to the following definitions of these activities:

(a) Table 88:
- Yes – response of 2 to Q.25; missing Q.25 but responded to 26b and 26c.
- No – response of 1 to Q.25 or missing to Q.25, Q.26b, Q.26c and/or response of 2 to Q.23.

(b) Table 93:
- Yes – response of 1 to Q.27b; missing Q.27b but wrote in a response of 12 or more hours to Q.27c.

(c) Table 98:
- Yes – response of 1 to Q.29a; missing Q.29a and missing Q.29b but answered Q.30, Q.33b, or Q.33c.
- No – response of 2 to Q.29a; missing 29a and answered at least two "Applies to me" in Q.29b, but skipped Q.30, Q.33b, and Q.33c; response of 2 to Q.23.

(d) Table 133:
- Yes – response of 1 to Q.33b; missing Q.33b but wrote in a response of 12 or more hours to Q.33c.

Classification Variables

Sex: Survey respondents identified themselves by sex in both the base-year Student Questionnaire and the First Follow-up Questionnaire.

Ethnic Category: Race or ethnic category was obtained from either base-year Student Questionnaire item number 84 or number 85 from Form B of the First Follow-up Questionnaire. However, there were some 1,418 individuals who did not receive Form B that should have received it, and, therefore, their ethnic classification must await second followup returns. For ethnic categories, Black denotes responses Black or Afro-American, or Negro; White refers to responses White or Caucasian; and Latin American applies to responses Mexican-American or Chicano, Puerto Rican, and other Latin-American origin. Participants who gave responses of American Indian, Oriental or Asian-American, or Other are listed as separate ethnic categories under race. However, they are grouped into a "Residual" category along with "No Information" when cross-classified with the other classification variables because of the limited number of observations.

Curriculum: Classification of respondents by high school program (General, Academic, and Vocational or Technical) was based upon question 2 in the Student Questionnaire or question 86 in Form B of the First Follow-up Questionnaire. If this self-classification was not available, it was provided from an item in the School Record Information Form (SRIF). For those having both sources available, Fetters[3] reported an agreement of 78, 60, and 66 percent, respectively, for the Academic, General, and Vocational curriculums between the survey administrator's determination reported on the SRIF and the student's self-classification. These discrepancies have not been analyzed and the reader may choose to regard, with some caution, any findings that involve this classification.

Academic Ability: Base-year participants were asked to take a 69-minute test battery developed by the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey, to measure both verbal and nonverbal ability. Tests were selected from the Comparative Guidance and Placement Program (a guidance service for 2-year colleges), Project Access (a project for minority youth), and other programs and projects. The battery of six tests (their estimates of reliability ranged from .78 to .90) produced scores in these areas:[4]

- Vocabulary (ability to understand the English language) . . . 15 items (5 minutes) using a synonym format
- Picture-number associations (rote memory) . . . 30 items (10 minutes)
- Reading (ability to read and understand short passages of nontechnical material) . . . 5 passages, 20 items (15 minutes)
- Mathematics (ability to solve reasoning problems involving quantitative comparisons, but not requiring algebraic, geometric, or trigonometric skills) . . . 25 problems (15 minutes)
- Letter groups (ability to find general concepts in a nonverbal context) . . . 25 items (15 minutes)
- Mosaic comparisons (perceptual speed and accuracy) . . . 116 items (9 minutes).

The academic-ability measure consists of the unweighted sum of scores on four of the six subjects in the base-year aptitude battery: Vocabulary, Reading, Mathematics, and Letter Groups. Each one of the four subtest scores was first standardized to a mean of 50 with a standard deviation of 10. The observed sum for the 15,625 respondents was 202.87 with a standard deviation of 33.08. The decision to apply equal weights for each test in the index was based upon the results from a principal component and a factor analysis with a varimax rotation.

Categories for the academic ability composite index were: high, upper quartile; middle, second and third quartiles; low, lowest quartile. The cutoff points were 225.7 for the upper quartile and 180.5 for the lowest quartile.

Socioeconomic Status Index (SES):[5] An SES composite index was derived from an equally weighted linear combination of five measures: father's education, mother's education, father's occupation, 1972 income of the family, and a specified inventory of household items. Question 78, father's and mother's education, was a repeat item in the first followup survey (Forms A and B) because of the high nonresponse in the base year.

The responses for father's and mother's education in the followup were used, if present; otherwise, the base-year data were used. In either case there was a rescaling to make the two sets of information compatible by reducing the response set from 9 to 5 categories: less than completion of high school, finished high school, up to 2 years of training beyond high school, graduation from a 4-year college, and attendance at graduate or professional school after college.

Parent's approximate income (Question 93) was rescaled from 10 to 7 categories by combining the six $1,500 intervals from $6,000 to $15,000 into three $3,000 intervals. The resulting scale thus had equal intervals up to $18,000.

A summary measure of a checklist of 11 items available in the respondent's home was derived from Question 94. All of them except "A specific place for study" represented a tangible possession. Moreover, the results of a factor analysis showed that the weight for this item was different from the others and that it had a low correlation with the first principal component. Therefore, it was dropped from consideration in developing the household item composite of possessions in the home. Each of the remaining 10 item responses was standardized to a mean of 0 and a standard deviation of 1. Prior to summing these standard scores on the nonmissing responses, the sign on the item standard score was reversed so that high scores would reflect possession of the item, since the original response set was 1 for "possession" and 2 for "nonpossession." The resulting sum was then converted to a mean by dividing it by the number of nonmissing responses.

Question 79 in the first followup was an open-ended description of the most recent job held by the father or male guardian. The metric of occupational status of the Bureau of Census Classification of Detailed Occupational Titles was used to numerically code this question and therefore group jobs into categories of related occupations and kindred workers. These codes were then mapped into Duncan's level of occupational status scale, using the conversion table contained in Reiss.[6] If information was missing, then the responses to base-year Question 25 were used. However, this question listed only 14 broadly representative occupational categories, such as clerical, craftsman, operative, professional, etc., with representative examples listed under each one. It was necessary to develop a single Duncan score for each questionnaire category based on an average of the scores for the examples cited for each occupation response choice. The socioeconomic status score for the clerical category, for example, was obtained by averaging the Duncan scores for the representative list of bank teller, bookkeeper, secretary, typist, mail carrier, and ticket agent. Thus, anyone who marked clerical on Question 25 in the base-year was assigned the Duncan average score obtained for these six examples.

The summary or composite SES index for each individual consists of an equally weighted sum of the five components after each component was first standardized to a mean of 0 and a standard deviation of 1. Up to 3 missing data components were permitted; i.e., the index was computed for any respondent whose data record contained two or more of the five ingredients. Each participant was assigned a code of 1, 2, or 3, depending upon whether his or her SES composite score was in the lower, middle two, or upper-quartile range. The cutoffs for these quartiles were as follows: 3 = upper quartile if $>$ + .4735; 2 = middle quartiles if $\leq$ + .4735 and $\geq$ - .4735; 1 = lower quartile if $<$ - .4735. In order that missing data not produce distortions, the following procedure was implemented: Subgroup means defined by cross-classifying race, high school program, and aptitude were computed for each classification factor separately and for all 2- and 3-way classifications. These means were substituted for the missing data. The selection of a proper mean for substitution was determined by the availability of the responses for the three stratification variables. If a respondent had all three variables missing, the 3-way classification means were used for substitutions. If a respondent had only two of the three variables missing, the corresponding 2-way classification means were used. For other cases, only the corresponding initial category mean was used for substitution of the missing data.

Geographic Region: One of the seven stratification variables used in the design and selection of the sample of high schools was geographic division. The four Census region designations and the states or districts located therein are listed below:

1. Northeast (Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania).
2. North Central (Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, and Kansas).
3. South (Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, and Texas).
4. West (Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, Washington, Oregon, California, Alaska, and Hawaii).

Data Qualifications

Questionnaire results presented in the tables are based upon a first-level edit of the data and should be considered provisional. For example, information initially lacking has now been obtained for several classification variables (sex - 56, ethnicity - 1,551, high school curriculum - 200, and SES - 656), and these responses will be added to the data files when they are updated with the inclusion of the second followup results.

One should also be cognizant of the loss of information in trichotomizing academic ability and SES for convenience of tabular presentation. Furthermore, a substantial number of respondents do not have test scores for deriving the academic ability index. Similarly, care must be exercised in examining relationships related to the classification of high ability Blacks, because of their limited number in the sample.

SURVEY ERROR

Reliability of the Estimates

The statistics in this report are estimates derived from a sample survey. Two types of errors are possible in such estimates—sampling and nonsampling. Sampling errors occur because observations are made only on a sample, not on the entire population. Nonsampling errors can be attributed to many sources: inability to obtain information about all cases in the sample; definitional difficulties; differences in the interpretation of questions; respondents' inability or unwillingness to provide correct information; mistakes in recording or coding data; and other errors of collection, response, processing, coverage, and estimation for missing data. Nonsampling errors also occur in complete censuses. The accuracy of a survey result is determined by the joint effects of sampling and nonsampling errors.

The particular sample used in this survey is one of a large number of possible samples of the same size that could have been selected, using the same sample design. Estimates derived from the different samples would be expected to differ from each other. The difference between a sample estimate and the average of all possible samples is called the sampling deviation. The standard or sampling error of a survey estimate is a measure of the variation among the estimates from all possible samples, and thus is a measure of the precision with which an estimate from a particular sample approximates the average result of all possible samples.

As calculated for this report, the standard error also partially measures the effect of certain nonsampling errors but does not measure any systematic biases in the data. Bias is the difference, averaged over all possible samples, between the estimate and the desired value. Obviously, the accuracy of a survey result depends upon the sampling and nonsampling errors measured by the standard error, and upon the bias not measured by the standard error.

The sample estimate and an estimate of its standard error permit us to construct interval estimates with prescribed confidence that the interval includes the average result of all possible samples (for a given sampling rate).

To illustrate: if all possible samples of a given size for a fixed design were selected so that each of them was surveyed under essentially the same conditions, and an estimate and its estimated standard error were calculated from each sample, then –

- approximately two-thirds of the intervals from 1 standard error below the estimate to 1 standard error above the estimate would include the average value of all possible samples (an interval from 1 standard error below the estimate to 1 standard error above the estimate is called a two-thirds confidence interval);

- approximately 95 percent of the intervals from 2 standard errors below the estimate to 2 standard errors above the estimate would include the average value of all possible samples (an interval from 2 standard errors below the estimate to 2 standard errors above the estimate is called a 95-percent confidence interval);

- almost all intervals from 3 standard errors below the sample estimate to 3 standard errors above the sample estimate would include the average value of all possible samples.

The closeness of these approximations depends on the correspondence of the actual distribution of the statistic to the normal distribution. In the case of sample percentages, the normal approximation is satisfactory except for small samples and extreme percentage values.

The average value of all possible samples may or may not be contained in any particular computed interval. But, for a particular sample, one can say with specified confidence that the average of all possible samples is included in the constructed interval.

Development of Generalized Standard Error Table

The calculation of a standard error for each estimate reported herein is not practical. Hence, an approximate generalized standard error table was created which expresses the standard error of an estimate as a function of both the estimated percentage or mean and the sample size upon which the statistic was based.

A sample of 16 First Follow-Up Questionnaire items (numbers 2, 4, 6b, 7a, 12, 13a, 14, 15a, 15f, 17, 20a, 20h, 48a, 64 and activity states for October 1972 and 1973), with a total of 73 response options was selected. Then six domain-defining variables, (sex, race, SES, ability, high school program, and region) were selected to provide a total of 33 subpopulations or domains.

For the total population and each of the 33 subpopulations, the standard error of the estimated percentage for each of the 73 response options was computed. Estimated design effects were computed as the ratio of the variance (square of the standard error) to the variance under simple random sampling. Parameters were estimated for regression equations of differing complexity which expressed the standard error of an estimated percentage as a function of the weighted item-response proportion and the sample size for the base of the proportion. Generalized values of the standard errors of the estimated proportions were computed, using the most reasonable regression model for the values of the estimated percentage and the corresponding sample size. These tabulated results are given in table A.

Illustration of Use of Sampling Error Table

Sampling errors for values within the ranges of table A may be approximated by linear interpolation. Such interpolations can be done on both the estimated percentage and the base of the estimated percentages. For example, in table 1 there were 58.1 percent of 2,526 Blacks who said they were working for pay at a full- or part-time job. Interpolation in table A between the 55-percent and the 60-percent estimated percentages rows and the sample size between 2,500 and 3,000 would produce a standard error of 1.22. If all possible samples based on the NLS sampling frame were drawn, and we looked at the percentage of Blacks in this sample who were working for pay at a full-time or part-time job, then the chances are 2 out of 3 that the interval of 58.1% ± 1 standard error of the estimate of the percentage (i.e., 56.9 percent to 59.3 percent) includes the average percentage value for all Blacks working for pay in all possible samples.

The user should be aware that the upper left quadrant of table A, where the sample size is small and the estimated percentages are at either extreme, contains standard errors for statistics with distributions that may not be closely approximated by the normal distribution. For example, an estimated percentage of 1 or 99 in a sample of 100 would result in a percentage interval estimate extending to less than 0 or greater than 100. Hence, the appropriateness of the applicability of the prescribed confidence of the constructed interval estimates depends upon the portion of the table being used.

APPENDIX B

ERROR AND MISSING DATA CODES

A set of standard "error" codes were defined and applied uniformly across the file to indicate certain common classes of erroneous or missing data. These codes are listed below:

93 – Partial response. This code is used only for those questions in the First Follow-Up Questionnaire which employ the 2-column response format (e.g., Question 1).[7] Each of these questions consists of a set of sub-items and requires the respondent to indicate whether each sub-item applies or does not apply. If the respondent answered at least one, but not all, of the sub-items for a question of this kind, then those unanswered sub-items were coded 93 to indicate a partial response to the question.

94 – Don't know (self-explanatory).

95 – Out-of-range response. This code is used when the response or transcription exceeds some specified acceptable range. It is described more fully in the following section.

96 – Multiple response. This is used if the respondent gave several answers to a question when the directions called for only one.

97 – Refusal. (self-explanatory).

98 – Blank, or nonresponsive. This code represents nonresponse in all cases other than those identified as legitimate nonresponse.

99 – Legitimate nonresponse. This is used when the respondent should not have answered the question and did not (i.e., he was routed around an item). Further, if the respondent did not answer an entire instrument, then all fields representing that instrument were coded 99.

[7] The following first followup questions received 93 codes: 1, 16, 22A, 24, 29B, 31, 35, 38, 44B, 48B, 54B, 62, 63, 71, 76.

APPENDIX C

SIMPLE FREQUENCY DISTRIBUTIONS OF FIRST FOLLOW-UP QUESTIONNAIRE ITEMS

This appendix presents frequency tabulations for the first followup items in the data file. If individual questionnaire codes would not be appropriate, or too extensive to tabulate, the data are summarized either by grouping the codes or by reporting the frequencies only within the minimum-to-maximum range of the items.

The error codes 93 to 99 are described in appendix B.
